

o.k. sorry about the long delay about sending a GOOD detailed e-mail...

please forward this to anyone/everyone you think might be interested ☺ first off go to isde.tv or gofasters.com for daily video updates... don't forget cyclenews.com also... www.isde2007.cl also

... they will have daily pics/videos..

Basically me and Lucas made it through tech and are in impound with no issues... for the team $\frac{3}{4}$ sound engineers; we made it though with 1 db to spare!!!

Everything is in order for a really desert type event... lots of SAND AND ROCK.S... can you say "whoops???" We have heard from the pre-rider that there are dead horse parts on the trail, dog parts, and lots of cactus and rocks...

Day one and two, will have beach and sand... note sand!!

Day three and four, will be more into the center of the country, with ROCKS and more ROCKS,,,, and did I mention even more sand thrown in... NO trees.... Also, bob and bryan went and scouted day three and four, for their check, and found that we would be riding on GRAVEL a bunch also.. see pic attached... the gravel averages about 6 inches in diameter.... (read bowling balls)

Yea, we are beginning to wonder why anyone would ride here... except for a atv... BUT as we have found, they have excellent CHEAP wine.... ☺ and my wineo support crew has been sampling much of it...

Other news..... the food has been excellent, hotel is great, unless you are a member of the support crew.... Us riders get the penthouse type room with a balcony and all.. the support crew gets a room about 10" x 10' with two camp style mini beds....

Rental cars are small racers... my peugot red-lines at 7000 rpm..!!!!
